Last year three friends of mine decided to spend a holiday in the mountains. They set off by car early in the morning . After stopping for a quick cup of tea at the wayside café , they set off again along the winding road that led to the mountains.

It got dark and it began to rain, which made it difficult to see the road clearly. After they had driven for about fifteen miles, there was no sign of the village. However, the map they had was not a very good one.

The car suddenly stopped. At first my friends thought that they had run out of petrol, but something else was wrong with the car. Since they could not start the car again, they decided to spend the night in the car.

As they woke up early in the morning, a car came along the road. They stopped the driver and asked him where the village was. He told them that it was just on the other side of the hill. They tied their car to his and he pulled it to the top of the hill. After that their car ran all the way downhill to the village, where they found a hotel and had a good breakfast. If the map had been clear, they would not have spent an uncomfortable night in the car.

TEST 15

Read the following text and answer the questions given below it.

Last Monday is a day Mrs. Silva will never forget. That's when she walked into the living room to see what her two year old girl, Oneli, was doing and realized she was missing.

The front door was wide open. It was raining cats and dogs and the wind was blowing into the house. Mrs. Silva ran outside and looked up and down the street, but Oneli was nowhere to be seen. The police responded to her call for help by mobilizing most of the people in this small town. After a twenty minute search, A child – dressed in pants, a tiny t-shirt, and slippers still couldn't be found.

By early afternoon, two hours after Mrs. Silva had discovered her daughter missing, everyone had given up the hope. There was no way she could still be alive on such a stormy day.

Mrs. Silva and rest of the town people could only wish for a miracle. What they got was a miracle dog named Hunter.

It seems Hunter, a large white husky who lives next door to the Silva's family, was snoozing in front of his house. He saw little Oneli coming. Walking down the street he grabbed and led her to his front door. The door must not have been shut tightly, because a half an hour later Mrs. Perera discovered her dog playing with Oneli. Of course, she knew who the child was and phoned Mrs. Silva immediately. She tried phoning the police too. No one was at Mrs. Silva's home to respond and the police line too was always busy.

But she kept trying. Finally when all the searches had given up, she got through to Mrs. Silva and Oneli was quickly reunited with her mother.

It seems that somehow the little girl had managed to unbolt the front door and was going outside to find her father who she thought had gone to work. And Hunter - well no one knows what he was thinking.
